SERMON SNAPSHOT

Good Morning, Sunset!

Imagine a foolish child being rebuked by his father. Zechariah chapters 7 and 8 have a similar feel to a father addressing his children's behavior, outlining his expectations, and promising future blessings. Today, we might call this a "Come to Jesus" talk!

God's people are finally rebuilding the temple after their Babylonian exile. When they ask whether they should continue their traditional fasting, God challenges them with a deeper question: "Was it for me that you fasted?" (Zechariah 7:5). God exposes their shallow motives but also points toward a future of peace and prosperity.

God sees beyond religious practices and examines the heart, calling His people to listen to His Word, show kindness and mercy, speak truthfully, and pursue peace with one another. God also reveals His great love for Jerusalem and His desire to dwell among His people. He promises restoration, fruitful harvests, and joyful celebrations. What a beautiful picture of peace and prosperity!

Ultimately, peace and prosperity are available to us today! Not through material wealth, but through faith in Christ. How might our peace and prosperity change as we grow closer to God?

In Christ,
Chris
